

Self-Esteem Keyboarding

Objective

To give students practice in composing sentences that helps boost their self-esteem.

Procedure

Ask each student in your class to key one positive statement about each other. In order to avoid any inappropriate comments, instruct the students that statements regarding the physical attributes of other students are not allowed.

Students should put the name of the student they are typing about before each positive statement. For instance, a student might key; "Janice is a great basketball player." Students should double space between each statement.

Have each student print their comments, cut out each individual statement and deliver them to each student. Note: You may want to review the comments for appropriate content before distributing them. Your students will get some extra keyboarding practice and will leave your class wearing a big smile for the day!

Time required

Approximately 30-40 minutes.
